CHAPTER I

INTRODUCTION

A. Background

The need for a strong judicial institution is getting higher and facing serious challenges in the midst of the emergence of corruption cases that have ensnared a number of court officials. The findings of the 2020 Global Corruption Barometer released by Transparency International, show that 34% of Indonesians still pay bribes to the courts during 2019 and 2020. Most recently, the results of the Rule of Law Index launched by the World Justice Project (WJP ROL 2022)—one of the composite indices from the Corruption Perception Index—shows that the civil justice factor in Indonesia, a factor that is generally related to the judiciary, is still far below the global and regional average scores.

Regarding the issue of integrity which is a matter for law enforcement, based on data from the Transparency International Indonesia (TII) national survey in 2022, at least a number of important findings have been recorded related to the performance of the courts and the risk of corruption in the institution. A number of findings in this survey indicate that corrupt practices are still a major concern in the justice reform agenda. This is shown by the finding that a quarter of the 1,200 respondents throughout Indonesia have known or even become victims of corrupt practices. Gratuities dominate, generally in the form of requests for money, gifts of goods, or discounts. Most requests for money by court officials are perceived as corruption. The majority of respondents considered that costs other than official fees violate the rules and are not reasonable.

B. Purpose

1. Reporting the results of monitoring and tracing the track record of Candidates for Supreme Court Judges by the Judicial Monitoring Coalition (KPP);

2. Provide recommendations to the Judicial Commission (KY) of the Republic of Indonesia based on the results of monitoring and tracing the track record of Candidates for Supreme Court Justices conducted by the KPP;

INTRODUCTION

The findings are directly related to judges, namely, among all court officers, judges are considered to have the greatest opportunity to commit corruption. In addition, decision-making is believed to be the stage with the greatest chance of corruption. Areas of (a) the discretion of judges' decisions, (b) administration of cases, and (c) decisions of judges, decisions and executions are perceived to have the most red flags. The integrity of law enforcers, commitment to eradicating corruption, and commitment to supporting justice reform are still homework related to public trust in the judiciary which is increasingly being eroded.

The Judicial Commission (KY) has again carried out a series of selections for Candidates for Supreme Court Justices of the Republic of Indonesia (RI), which began on August 31 2022. KY has announced a number of names for Candidates for Supreme Court Judges who have passed the quality selection. In relation to this selection, civil society, especially TII, considers it necessary to be involved in monitoring prospective judges so that they can produce judges with integrity and who fully support judicial reform.

Based on Article 18 paragraph (2) Law no. 18 of 2011 concerning the Judicial Commission which reads "Selection as referred to in paragraph (1) (fit test) is carried out openly by involving community participation." and Article 17 paragraph (3) of Law no. 22 of 2004 concerning the Judicial Commission which reads "The public has the right to provide information or opinions on the candidates for Supreme Court Judges within a period of 30 (thirty) days from the announcement as referred to in paragraph (2)", illustrates that the public has the legal standing to conduct track record tracking and monitoring in the context of providing information or opinions to prospective judges.

From the results of monitoring and tracing the track record that has been carried out by the KPP, there are several records regarding the suitability of the candidate in terms of integrity, independence, competence, as well as the candidate's perspective on Human Rights (HAM).

C. SCOPE AND LIMITATIONS

Monitoring was carried out on Supreme Court Justice Candidates. Monitoring for each Candidate cannot be the same in terms of depth and breadth given the limitations of information, sources, and/or sources of clarification.

CHAPTER II

MONITORING METHODS

Monitoring is carried out on each candidate and involves journalists or regional partners in the process of exploring the candidate's track record in the area where the candidate previously worked. Monitoring can be carried out by the community collectively with various other elements of society. In this guide, community groups that actively monitor the selection process are called Trackers.

The monitoring process carried out by the Trackers includes:

No. 01 – Interview the Sources

Interview with the level of the source:

- Circle 1: family, neighbors;
- Circle 2: co-workers, alma mater;
- Circle 3: political associations, organizations, community organizations, etc.

No. 02 – Media Tracking

Conduct secondary searches based on information from official government websites, news channels - mass media and social media history. Search can utilize the social network analysis method

No. 03 – Court Decision Analysis

Tracking and analysis of case report documents and court decisions

No. 04 – Wealth Report Tracking

Tracing of State Officials Wealth Report (LHKPN) documents

No. 05 – Business Relationship Tracking

Tracing for business documents/company name and position in the company related to the candidate

No. 06 – Professional Track Record Tracking

Tracing of professional performance documents at the candidate agency/institution

MONITORING METHODS

The criteria for Candidates for Supreme Court Judges (CHA) refer to Article 24A of the 1945 Constitution: "A Supreme Court Justice must have integrity and personality that is flawless, fair, professional, and experienced in the field of law". In this monitoring, the Tracker divides monitoring indicators into four main aspects, namely: integrity, independence, competence, and the perspective of Candidate Supreme Court Judges (CHA) and Ad Hoc Judge Candidates for Corruption on Human Rights (HAM). This is based on the records of the Civil Society Coalition on the ideal criteria of the CHA and Candidates for Ad Hoc Corruption Judges, including the following:

1. CHA and Ad Hoc Tipikor Judge Candidates who have a clear vision and mission as Supreme Court Justices and Tipikor Ad Hoc Judges;
2. CHA and Ad Hoc Corruption Judge Candidates who do not have a poor integrity record;
3. CHA and Ad Hoc Corruption Judge Candidates who have reasonable assets;
4. CHA who has a qualified understanding of law and justice according to the case room chosen;
5. CHA and Candidate Ad Hoc Judges for Corruption Crimes who are committed to play an active role in justice reform, especially in the Supreme Court;
6. CHA and Candidate Ad Hoc Judges for Corruption Eradication who understand the role of judges and courts in fulfilling human rights according to the position of the court in the concept of a rule of law state; as well as
7. CHA and Candidates for Ad Hoc Corruption Judges who have partiality for vulnerable groups, namely women, children, the poor and minority groups, as well as environmental protection.

Four Main Aspects of Monitoring:

- a. Integrity
- b. Independence
- c. Competence
- d. Human Rights Perspective

MONITORING INDICATORS

Key Indicators	Sub-Indicators	Documents
----------------	----------------	-----------

1. INTEGRITY

Appropriate Candidates in the aspect of integrity are measured based on administrative compliance, Candidate compliance with law and ethics, as well as data on the Candidate's assets that are considered reasonable or not.

The candidate is recorded as having expressed an opinion regarding differences in conflicts of interest and gratuities. According to him, a conflict of interest is a situation where there is a conflict of interest for someone who takes advantage of his position and authority (whether intentionally or unintentionally) for personal, family or group interests so that the tasks mandated cannot be carried out objectively and has the potential to cause harm. For example when a judge in handling a case has an interest in the process of the case being examined so that the decision is not in accordance with what it should be. Gratification is a gift in a broad sense, which includes the provision of additional money (fee) or gifts, goods, rebates (discounts), lodging facilities, travel, free medical treatment, and other facilities, with an example when a leader receives gratuity as a thank you from a subordinate for a promotion or transfer to a regional h desired.	https://pa-seirampah.go.id/index.php/berita/berita-pa-sei-rampah/803-pa-sei-rampah-ikuti-sosialisasi-benturan-kepentingan-dan-gratifikasi

The Judicial Commission has announced a number of names of Candidates for Supreme Court Judges who have passed the quality selection stage to fill the eleven Supreme Court Justice positions requested by the Supreme Court of the Republic of Indonesia. The number of candidates who passed the selection stage included 17 people in the Criminal Chamber, 2 people in the Civil Chamber, 5 people in the Religion Room, 2 people in the State Administration Room, and 3 people in the State Administration Chamber (on Tax).

From the results of monitoring and tracing the candidate's track record that has been carried out by civil society, there are a number of notes that need to be considered by the Judicial Commission regarding the suitability of candidates in the aspects of integrity, independence, competence, as well as the candidate's perspective on Human Rights (HAM), including namely:

Muhammad Damis, S.H., M.H.,

The candidate was recorded as having served as Chief Judge when handling a social assistance (bansos) corruption case involving Juliari Batubara. The candidate sentenced Juliari Batubara to 12 years in prison, a fine of IDR 500 million, compensation of IDR 14.5 billion, and may not hold public office for four years. The decision sparked public scrutiny and uproar because the candidate believed that he was reducing the sentence for the defendant Juliari Batubara because he had suffered public insults as a result of the corruption case.

02

Dr. Triyono Martanto, S.H., S.E., Ak., CA., M.M., M.Hum.,

It was recorded that he was suspected of committing plagiarism in his paper when conducting a due diligence in the selection process for Candidates for Supreme Court Justices in 2021 at Commission III of the DPR RI.

CHAPTER V CLOSING

B. RECOMMENDATION

Based on the findings that have been described and several notes related to the track record of Candidates for Supreme Court Judges, civil society requests the Judicial Commission to pay further attention to Candidates who have a poor track record and have a record that is lacking in terms of integrity, independence, competence, and candidate perspective regarding Human Rights (HAM).

The Judicial Commission also needs to encourage Candidates for Supreme Court Judges who have a clear vision and mission as Supreme Court Judges, Candidates for Supreme Court Judges who have a qualified understanding of law and justice, Candidates for Supreme Court Judges who understand the role of judges and courts in fulfilling human rights according to the position of the court in the concept of a rule of law, and Candidates for Supreme Court Justices who have partiality for vulnerable groups, namely women, children, the poor and minority groups, as well as environmental protection.

A number of these aspects are important to produce judges with integrity and support judicial reform, especially at the Supreme Court.

Ideal Chief Justice Value:

- a. Integrity
- b. Independence
- c. Competence
- d. Human Rights Perspective
